NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CENTURY Co. has bought the plates of the late Prof. Francis Bowen's revision of Henry Reeve's English translation of Tocqueville's "Notes on Democracy in America," and will bring out at once a new edition, carefully indexed, of this standard work.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish at once the American edition of an important work on "Ironclads in Action," by H. W. Wilson, with an introduction by Capt. A. T. Mahan. It will be in two volumes, and will be profusely illustrated with drawings, maps, plans, etc., and will contain a careful survey of naval warfare during the last half century.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce "Renaissance Fancies and Studies," by Vernon Lee, being a sequel to her "Euphorion;" "Joan of Arc," by Mrs. Oliphant, a new volume in the Heroes of the Nations series; and "The Crime of the Century," by R. Ottolengui, a new volume in the Hudson Library. They are making up from their set of the complete "Writings of Thomas Paine" popular and cheaper editions of the "Rights of Man" and of "The Age of Reason." The concluding volume of the larger work will be issued early in the new year.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish shortly "A London Garland," consisting of extracts from Chaucer, Lydgate, Dunbar, Surrey, Spenser, Drayton, etc., edited by W. E. Henley, with 100 illustrations by members of the Society of Illustrators; a translation, by Dr. W. B. Shober, of Lehigh University, of Dr. Ludwig Gattermann's work on organic chemistry, entitled "Die Praxis des Organischen Chemikers," which has been described by so competent an authority as Prof. Remsen as "a thoroughly practical book by one who is a skilled experimenter"; also, a new volume on insects, by David Sharp, in the Cambridge Natural History series. They also announce William Winter's "Brown Heath and Blue Bells," which contains some of the author's most delightful and characteristic sketches.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish early next month the first volume of a work entitled "Literary Anecdotes of the Nineteenth Century—contributions towards a literary history of the period," edited by W. Robertson Nicoll, editor of The British Weekly and the English edition of The Bookman, and Thomas J. Wise, author of the "Bibliography of John Ruskin." This is to be one of the most important undertakings that has been contemplated in the history of literature for a long time. The work will probably run into six volumes, and will furnish valuable material towards a complete literary history of the century. They also announce a volume of "Poems," by Ernest McGaffey; "The Paying Guest," a story by George Gissing; "Fleet Street Eclogues," by John Davidson, which will contain the first as well as the second English series of the poems which first attracted attention to Mr. Davidson; "Biographical Essays," memorial sketches of Dean Stanley, Dean Alford, Mrs. Duncan Stewart, and Paray Le Monial, by Augustus J. C. Hare; also, "Charlecote, or, the trial of William Shakespeare," a dramatic representation of a supposed episode in Shakespeare's life, by John Boyd Thacher, with illustrations by Charles L. Hinton.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

THE annual dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade will be held at Delmonico's, New York, on Tuesday evening, February 4. Speakers prominent in literary and scientific fields have promised to be present. Tickets, at $7 each, may be obtained from Henry C. Bainbridge, care of The Stationers' Board of Trade, 97 Nassau St., N. Y., or from Charles T. Dillingham, P. Farrelly, Charles McLoughlin, Andrew J. C. Foye, Frank Squier, and Charles A. Appleton, who form the dinner committee.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Goes from "Preamble" to "Impeachment." No exhaustive treatise upon the Constitution of the United States has hitherto been attempted since the "Commentaries" of Judge Story, which were written more than sixty years ago. Mr. Foster's work is the first attempt to place the new matter that has arisen since then in form accessible to the professional and general reader. It is at once a complete constitutional history of the United States and a compilation of all the precedents which aid in the construction of the Federal Constitution.

Goodwin, T. A., D.D. Lovers three thousand years ago as indicated by the Song of Solomon. Chic., Open Court Pub. Co., 1895. c. 5+41 p. O. bds., 50 c. [5043]

The plan of the author has been to eliminate all textual criticism, and to restore the text of the "Song of Solomon" to the form which made the poem a treasure with the ancient Hebrews. The book is divided into three parts; the first, "The historical import of the poem," tells the story of the poem, and assigns its place in the national literature of the Hebrews. The second part, "The character of the poem," gives the author's justification for his arrangement of the text in dramatic form, and depicts the conditions of the times in which it is set. The third part is the "Song of songs" proper. Remarks explanatory of the personages and mechanism of the dialogue are interspersed throughout the text, so that the whole forms a continuous, connecting reading.

Nordau, Max. The comedy of sentiment: a novel. Authorized ed. N. Y. and Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, [1895.] c. 278 p. D. cl., $1.50. [5077]

Gustav Bruchstädt comes to the convention of German naturalists, held at Magdeburg, in Sept., 1884, and meets Frau Paula Ehrwein, an unscrupulous beautiful adventuress. After a few days' acquaintance he enters into immoral relations with her, while she uses every art to induce him to marry her. He defers his decision on that point for six months and at the end of that time gives her up, in spite of some tragical scenes. She afterward marries another man, and after awhile Bruchstädt discovers that during the time he was her lover and she had been writing him impassioned letters she had held the same relations with another man, and was writing him love-letters. This is "the comedy of sentiment."

The writer is ex-member of the House of Commons of Canada. His work is an investigation into the true history of the deportation of the French settlers in Nova Scotia by the British in 1755. Many of the accusations made against them and sustained by Parkman and other historians he shows to be untrue. His history is based upon new documents and traditions in the families of the descendants of the deported Nova Scotians.

Ripley, Mrs. Mary Anna, [formerly M. A. Paul]. Hildebrand and Cicely; or, the monk of Tavystoke Abbaye. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1895. 3+359 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1. [5089]

Friar Hildebrand, through whose journal the story is told, was an English Augustinian monk of the sixteenth century, who while yet a young man sought the shelter and solitude of the old abbey and its rigorous vows. A temptation comes to him in the person of "sweet Cicely," and it is related how heroically he kept his vows. English life just at the dawn of the Reformation is well described.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE quarterly Bulletin of the Boston Public Library, July to October, contains Russian and German fiction in the continuation of the revised edition of the "Chronological Index to Historical Fiction." (Nos. 101-102, 99-240 p. 8°, $1 a year.)

A FRENCH Trade List Annual was announced in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for August 3. During the first months of March this will appear in five octavo volumes, alphabetically indexed by authors and subjects. The separate indexes will be merged into one and published by H. Le Soudier, of Paris, as a separate volume from year to year, revised to date. To enable the subscribers to this undertaking to be posted on the current and forthcoming publications, it has now been decided to publish a weekly list of new publications and forthcoming books with descriptive notes which will be incorporated in the Mémorial de la Librairie Française after January 1. Special attention will be given to a weekly index to contents of periodicals. The columns of the Mémorial de la Librairie Française will also be open to all communications regarding the reform or the perfecting of matters pertaining to the publishing and retail trade.

THE SPEECH THAT WAS NOT MADE.

(House of Representatives, Wednesday, Dec. 18, 1895.)

MR. SPEAKER: Our nation is a great nation. It is too great to think in rage, to speak in bluster, or to act in haste. The People is greater than the President; the People is wiser than the Congress. Its sober second thought, in the quiet of millions of homes, is for us the final court of appeal. It has given to this House of the People, and to the Senate of the States, a trust greater than has ever before been committed to men, the keeping of the life, the liberty and the happiness of this nation of sixty millions of human beings, the foremost, the most free and the most Christian nation on the earth, the apostle and the guardian of the welfare of future generations. We face to-day the gravest question men have ever faced—the question of peace or war between this people and its kin across sea, they of the mother-country from which has come our birthright of freedom, co-guardian with us of the blessings of peace and of Anglo-Saxon civilization, a nation of answering millions, brothers in one blood, in one speech and one literature, and in faith in one common God. What we here resolve to-day we cannot altogether undo. If we err, and bring upon this nation the horrors of reckless and unneeded war, the vengeance of our people will follow us, and each of us, to unhonored graves. For such a crime we must answer at no lesser tribunals than the court of the nations, the bar of history, and the judgment-seat of God.

One week from this day we celebrate the birth, nineteen centuries ago, of Him whom we reverence as the Prince of Peace, who declared that He came to bring "peace on earth, good-will to men." For more than fifty generations mankind has struggled upward toward that light of peace and into the free air of liberty. We count ourselves a Christian nation, the leader in this struggle. Three weeks ago, at the call of the President of these united and happy States, we joined in a general Thanksgiving that peace dwelt within our borders. We thanked God that we were not as the nations of the older world, armed to keep the peace by threat of war, doubling the burdens of the half which toiled to pay the cost of the half which drilled, and watching with sleepless jealousy lest every friend should prove a foe. We rejoiced that we were without "foreign relations"; that we were neither an armed camp, like the nations of Europe, nor an ever-changing and unstable government, like the nations of the South. But with the suddenness of the last trump all is changed. By one act this Christian nation, at this Christmastide, faces war, and war with our nearest of kin.

There are those who prate glibly that war will be a blessing; we will annex Canada, free Ireland, invade England, sweep her commerce from the seas, "boom" at-home, and be cock of the walk among the nations—"By Jingo, we will!" It were treason to count the cost. What fatuous foolishness! It would be treason to humanity not to count the cost. But indeed, the cost cannot be counted—whether we win or lose. Hearts' blood must flow, American and English, as men shoot to kill, whether on English or American or Venezuelan soil, or on the sea. Victorious, we should pay a terrific cost; beaten, an incalculable one. The whole world would be the seat of war. Whether New York and the Capitol in Washington, or London and Westminster Abbey, where our own great dead are honored with the great dead of England, be at the mercy of foreign shells, would be equally to the loss of mankind. Commerce would be checked; the farmers of the West would lose the world's market for their wheat, and the planters of the South for their cotton—never to be regained; and, just as this nation is emerging from the financial toils which have prevented New York becoming, instead of London, the financial centre of the world, we should plunge again into all the direful and demoralizing consequences of war for another and another generation.

There are others who say that there will be no war, that England will "back down," but that we must "stand to our guns." If we do not mean war, let us not talk war. The thought of war breeds panic. Values will fall; our credit will be checked, the hands of trade tied, the wheels of industry stopped; every one will lose and no one gain. The passion of war is the poison of a people. We have prepared for it only too well; our churches have turned the Sunday-schools, with their boys' brigades and rifle-drills, into a nursery of war, and in our legislative halls the ministers of the Prince of Peace have perverted prayer into wild argument. We cannot expect, we should not desire, that English pluck or American pluck should be forced to "back down"; the humiliation of a great nation is neither a Christian nor a civilized act. "Arbitrate, or fight!" is not the tone used among gentlemen or among nations. There is a better way; let us seek it.

There are those who say that principle is at stake. In truth, no price is too high for this nation to pay for principle—the last cent of the people's money, the last drop of the last man's blood. That price we were ready to pay, but one generation ago, for human freedom, and for the nation's free life. But this grave contention, this threat of war, is hung not on a principle, not on a doctrine, but on the questionable application or extension of a doctrine to a boundary dispute of which the facts are not yet known to us. This is no occasion for threat of war on pretext of obtaining facts. It will be a blot on England's history that she has on her part declined to accept and apply the very principle, of peaceful arbitration, of which she has been a champion and to which her Parliament has given formal and official sanction. But two wrongs do not make one right; let not us do wrong because she has done wrong. Let us have peace—before war, instead of after it. Let us appoint our commissioners, but as a friendly act, and let us again invite, and courteously, the opposing parties to join with our friendly help in obtaining evidence and understanding.

Every true American, North or South, East or West, is prepared to give his life-blood, if need be, in defence of the nation's honor, to see again desolate homes and bleeding hearts. But let us not confuse passion with patriotism, Jingoism with justice, hate with honor. Spare us, good Lord, spare thy people from such great sin.

We of the Saxon race unite, Sabbath by Sabbath, and day by day, in the prayer: "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." Let that prayer be in our hearts to-day, we who are representatives of the people, of the republic, of democracy. Let peace come. Deliver us from war. God save America. God save England. And let all the peoples say, Amen!

AMERICA and England are nowhere more closely united in bonds of kinship and amity than in the past in their common literature and in the present in their authors and publishing trades. It is in the comity and good-feeling which come, not in any sordid way, but in the best sense, from trade relations, that the modern world has its best assurances of peace. We need make no apology, therefore, for the unusual course of printing in this issue of the Christmastide the above imaginary expression of the feeling which should, and for the most part does, exist in this great nation as to "war"—impossible thought!—between it and the mother-country. Throughout the calm, sane, and controlling portion of the American people there is general and extreme regret that England, which has officially put itself on record so many times in favor of arbitration, should decline to adopt that course, on the friendly suggestion of the United States, in a case on this continent where arbitration seems peculiarly appropriate and effective. There is only less regret that the position of this country has been put in so extreme a way as to make it less easy for England to adopt its suggestion, and to permit if not invite the inference that refusal means war. There is also, of course, a general and loud response to anything which seems an appeal to patriotism, and there is also some feeling, which "strikes" and the general policy of restriction have cultivated, that trade relations are relations of antagonism, and that England is in this sense our chief antagonist. But the appeal to the higher patriotism and the broader feeling will nevertheless prevail, and it is especially pleasant to see this appeal made by English authors to their own and to our people. Both America and England have had during the past fortnight a severe lesson of the sad havoc that can be brought upon them by the rashness of their rulers, but this sudden and evident consequence has perhaps helped rather than hindered the outlook for a peaceful and happy New Year. R. R. B.

ENGLISH AUTHORS IN FAVOR OF PEACE.

AN address from British to American literary men relative to the Anglo-American crisis has been compiled by an author of distinction, whose name, however, is not made public, and is being numerously signed. Among those who sign the address will probably be John Ruskin, William Lecky, Walter Besant, Richard Blackmore, Thomas Hardy, William Black, Rider Haggard, John Morley, and others equally prominent. After prefatory remarks, the address continues: "There are two paths before us. One leads we know not whither, but, in the end, through war, with all its accompaniments of carnage, unspeakable suffering, limitless destruction and hideous desolation, to its inevitable sequel—hatred, bitterness, and the disruption of our race. It is this path that we ask you to join us in an effort to make impossible."

The address dwells on the strength of the tie of literature, which, it says, will continue to live after the fever of any political strife shall have passed away. If war should occur English literature would be dishonored and disfigured for a century to come by patriotic songs, histories of victories and defeats, records of humiliation and disgrace, and stories of burning wrong and unavenged insult. These would be branded deep in the hearts of our peoples, who would so express themselves in poems and novels as to make it impossible for any of us who had lived through such a fratricidal war to resume their former love and friendship.

In conclusion the address says: "Poets and creators, scholars and philosophers, men and women of imagination and vision, we call upon you in the exercise of your far reaching influence to save our literature from dishonor and our race from lasting injury."

THE COMPLETED REVISED VERSION OF THE BIBLE.

APROPOS of the publication of "The Apocrypha, translated out of the Greek and Latin tongues, being the version set forth A.D. 1611, compared with the most ancient authorities and revised A.D. 1894," printed for the Universities of Oxford (Henry Frowde) and Cambridge (C. J. Clay), the editor of the London Telegraph reviews the work of the revisers as follows: "Three committees of revisers, the London, the Westminster, and the Cambridge respectively, took the work in hand. It is of historic interest here to recall the names, and sad to note how few of those who commenced the undertaking remained to see its close. The first section included originally the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol (Dr. Ellicott), the Bishop of Salisbury (Dr. Moberly), Bishop of St. Andrews (Dr. Wordsworth), the Dean of Rochester (Dr. Scott), the Master of the Temple (Dr. Vaughan), the Rev. Principal Angus, and the Rev. Prebendary Humphry, and they began with the Book of Ecclesiasticus on May 11, 1881.

"The Westminster Committee comprised the Archbishop of Dublin (Dr. Trench), Dean Stanley, the Archdeacon of Dublin (Dr. Lee), the Archdeacon of Oxford (Dr. Palmer), the Rev. Dr. Scrivener, Principal Brown, Principal Newth, and Dr. Vance Smith. They dealt with the Books of Judith, Tobit, and the First Book of Maccabees. Although the Cambridge Committee consisted at first of the Bishop of Durham (Dr. Lightfoot), the Dean of Lincoln (Mr. Blakesley), Prof. Hort, Prof. Kennedy, Prof. Westcott, Dr. Milligan, Dr. Moulton, and Dr. Roberts, the bulk of the work, which included the Book of Wisdom and the Second of Maccabees, was performed by Dr. Hort, Dr. Moulton, and Dr. Westcott. Subsequently members of the Old Testament Company of Revisers, including the Bishop of Worcester (Dr. Perowne), Prof. Lumby, Prof. Robertson Smith, Mr. Bensly, Prof. Cheyne, Dr. Field, and Mr. Aldis Wright, revised the two books of Esdras, Baruch, the additions to Esther, the Song of the Three Holy Children, the History of Susanna, Bel and the Dragon, and the Prayer of Manasses.

"In the revision of this portion of the work greater changes were necessary than in either the Old or the New Testament, the version of 1611 being in many instances seriously defective. Perhaps the most important of all the emendations made is an insertion in 2 Esdras, vii. At verse 35 there was an obvious gap. By dint of laborious and long-continued research Prof. Bensly discovered in ancient texts a passage of seventy verses that had been dropped from all modern editions, and is now restored. The rendering generally has been enormously improved by the adoption of the late professor's reconstructed Latin text.

"Among the many merits of the new version is the free indication in the margin of corrupt or doubtful texts, and of varied and in many cases suggested readings. Of course in the Apocrypha, as elsewhere, poetry is printed as verse, and the prose is paragraphed. The old form effectually concealed many of the poetic beauties of Job, the Psalms, parts of the Prophets, and Ecclesiasticus.

"It is safe to predict that these books will now have more readers. The fact that the Church of Rome accepted was enough for many Protestants to reject them. But modern views are vastly altered in regard to the whole subject of inspiration and canonicity. No intelligent reader can nowadays dispense with the noble record of the Maccabees, or the elevated sentiments of Ecclesiasticus. Surely it must sufficiently safeguard orthodox scruple if these ancient and venerable writings are classed as apocryphal. We may hope also that the time has now arrived for the general adoption of the Revised Version."

DUMAS'S UNPUBLISHED WORKS TO BE DESTROYED.

ALEX. DUMAS filis laid strict injunctions upon his executors to burn all his unpublished manuscripts. This will include two unpublished comedies, "The Route to Thebes" and "La Troublante." The decision is regretted by his admirers, as great things were expected of "La Troublante," which had been read to certain intimate friends, according to whom it was a masterpiece of wit and satire.

The fact is, says a correspondent of the London Daily News, "that as he got old, Dumas, who was always a laborious writer, polishing and repolishing his sentences with infinite care, found it almost impossible to please himself. Latterly he has complained to M. Claretie that he was not well enough to revise the play he had promised to the Comédie Française. Not long ago, however, he wrote: 'You shall have it before the end of the year, or I shall be dead.' As was always the case, adds M. Claretie, he kept his word."

ANOTHER BOOKWORM FOUND.

FELIX PELTIER, a bibliophile, living on the Schenectady road, four miles from Albany, according to the N. Y. World, has discovered in an old book of English hymns a live bookworm. "It is a small white worm, about three-eighths of an inch long and one-eighth of an inch in diameter. Its head is blunt, while its tail tapers to a sharp point. It is the color of water mixed with oatmeal. It lies motionless until disturbed, when it raises itself suddenly, but almost instantly resumes its position buried in the pages. Protruding over the edge of the leaves and attached to the tail of the worm is a conical cocoon.

"This cocoon when examined under the microscope appears to have six legs or leg cases, and the white median line is barely perceptible on its under side. In the head of the worm are two fine horns thinner than silk thread. There are five rings around the tail. The structure of the shell of the cocoon is so thin that one can easily see through it."

BIOGRAPHIES TO ORDER.

OF the numerous trades the followers of which depend for their livelihood upon the folly, vanity, and snobbishness of their fellow-men, one of the simplest and not least remunerative is that of the biography manufacturer. To succeed in this branch of business, according to a Sun correspondent, it is necessary to possess a certain knowledge of mankind, considerable tact, and, above all, a great deal of assurance.

"There are various ways of conducting this business. One of the commonest is by means of the circular letter. This, which is sent by the biography manufacturer to any likely victim, announces that Messrs. So and So will shortly publish a Biographical Cyclopædia, and that as the work would be very incomplete if it omitted to mention the addressee, the publishers would be much obliged to him if he would furnish them with his biography at an early date. To this is usually added that no charge whatever is made for printing the biography; 'but we are very anxious,' the letter goes on to say, 'to secure your portrait, the cost of which will be —.' The price varies considerably, according to its size, the status of the biography factory, etc. The letter generally concludes by saying that 'your orders and those of as many of your friends as possible for the complete work are solicited.'

"Sometimes the biography is written by a friend, but if he is a good friend the result is generally much the same as if it had been written by the subject himself. The following extract from the life of A—B—, poet, as submitted to a biography factory, will serve to illustrate this:

"His many-sided nature is illustrated by the following incident: One morning he went to New York to give his foreman and workmen some instructions in carrying out a contract for building a creosote factory in Hoboken. In the afternoon, the Poets' Club gave him a reception, and his latest epic was the topic of discussion. Later, he went to Sheephead Bay to see his famous steeplechaser Bucephalus engage in a race there. In the evening he lectured on "Folk-Lore" before a select literary audience, and, afterward, before the — Athletic Club he whipped the champion amateur pugilist of the world.'

"Sometimes the autobiographer endeavors to convey the impression that the life was written by another. Here is a verbatim copy of such a biography: '— was born in Portland, Me., Jan. 2, 1854. His father's name is John P. Ericson; by trade he was a blacksmith. I left there when I was 21 years old. I went to school until I was 16 years old, and taught school and did clerical work until I was 21 years old, and then I came west to Kansas to work at my father's trade. . . . For the past five years of my life I have taken Patents and Developed them. I took out a patent five years ago it was a machine that done away with typesetting. . . . I got married in 1870 to Mary E. Jones we have two children.'

"To this the agent considerably added: 'I suppose you can write the above from these data.'

"Most autobiographers attach the utmost importance to every detail that relates either to themselves, their family connections, or their friends. One of these, for instance, describes at length the illness of his daughter, and concludes with, 'On Jan. 7 this beautiful girl left her father's handsome residence on Palisade avenue for Heaven'—'her father's handsome residence on Palisade avenue' being carefully inserted in the original statement, showing it to have been an afterthought that the reader might be impressed with the desirability of both ends of the route described.

"Modesty is not one of the autobiographer's characteristics. After many pages relative to his achievements, both in general and in particular, but mostly in particular, a Florida physician asked his biographers to 'tell the world what I have done!' A dentist thus chronicled his work: 'Since removing to Dakota, Dr. Molar's career has been a series of brilliant successes.' Twenty pages devoted to the achievements, ancestry, personal appearance, etc., of a wholesale grocer wound up with the credible statement: 'Mr. Soapandstarch is a modest man.'"

OBITUARY NOTES.

"STEPNIAK" (Dr. Sergius Michael Draganoff), the well-known Russian author, was killed accidentally while crossing a railroad track at Chiswick, on the 23d inst. He was born in 1841, in Hadjatsch, in the Ukraine Mountains, in the government of Poltava, and came of a semi-noble family descended from the Cossacks of Little Russia. He studied at Kieff from 1859 to 1863. In that time he published several works in the Little Russian dialect, which were prohibited by the government in 1862. In 1865 he became "docent" in ancient history in the University of Kieff, and in 1870 he became a professor, but was removed from his chair by the government three years later. His criticisms on the system pursued by Count Tolstoi, one of the Ministers of Justice, led to his exile in 1876. He went to Geneva then and settled there, producing popular writings in the Little Russian dialect. In 1877 he began a series of reviews in the Ukraine dialect, called "Hromada," which means "common things." At the same time he worked hard for the establishment of equal political rights for all people in Russia, and declared against socialism as well as absolutism. Some of the principal works which Stepniak has produced are: "The Turks Within and Without," "Tyrannicide in Russia," "Little Russian Internationalism," and "Underground Russia." He also contributed to the magazines some papers on "East European Peoples and the Propaganda of Socialism" and "Historical Poland and the Muscovite Democracy." He is also known for his works on the ethnography, history, and literature of Little Russia, and, with M. Antonowitch, has edited a collection of Little Russian folk-songs. "Stepniak," his pseudonym, meaning "child of the steppes," achieved a unique distinction as an uncompromising opponent of Russian autocracy and socialism. In 1890 he visited America on a lecturing tour. In later years he spent considerable of his time in England.

NORMAN A. CALKINS, a prominent educator, died in New York City on the 22d inst. He was born in Gainesville, N. Y., September 9, 1822. He came to New York in 1846 to take charge of The Student and Schoolmate. In the fall of 1862 he was selected by the Board of Education as assistant superintendent of schools of the city of New York. He entered on the duties of the office on January 1, 1863, and by subsequent elections held the office until the time of his death. Mr. Calkins was known as the superintendent of the primary departments. In 1864 he was appointed instructor in methods and principles of education in the Saturday Normal School. At the opening of the Normal School College in 1871 he was appointed professor of the method and principles of teaching in the Saturday sessions, and he filled this place until 1883. He was the author of many educational works, including "Manual of Object Training" and "Primary Object Lessons," which have been translated into other languages and have been used extensively in Europe. He was the author of a work on "Ear and Voice Training," and arranged the material and prepared the plans for Prang's Natural History series and the accompanying manual; also for the "Aids for Object Teaching," "Trades and Occupations," with plates, and a natural history series for children.

CHARLES FREDERIC WILLIAMS, the managing editor of the last eight volumes of the "American and English Encyclopædia of Law," died on the 20th inst. in Boston. He had been living in Northport, L. I., but went to Boston a few weeks ago. He was born in Charleston, Mass., October 31, 1842. He was educated in the Harvard Law School. His encyclopædia work was only a small part of his contributions to law literature. He has been chief clerk of the John L. Hayes Tariff Commission, and his "Tariff Laws of the United States, with Explanatory Notes and Citations from the Decisions of the Courts and the Treasury Department," was published in 1883. His "Index of Cases Overruled, Distinguished, etc., in England and America," was published in 1887. Although his name did not appear on the title-page, he was one of the principal collaborators of Little, Brown & Co.'s "Annual Digest" (merged in the West Publishing Company's "American Digest"); also of "Jacobs's Complete Digest" (now similarly superseded). His services upon the "Federal Digest," published in 1886, were acknowledged and commended in the preface of the principal compiler, J. K. Kinney. In 1891 appeared his "Digest of Decisions of the Massachusetts Supreme Court."

MRS. WILLIAM VASSAR WEBB, better known by her maiden name, Isabel Frances Currie, died in New York on the 20th inst., aged 38 years. She was born in Springfield, N. J., and was engaged in literary pursuits from her childhood. She first contributed articles in Spanish to El Atenio, a Spanish art paper published in New York. She had especial ability for writing children's stories, and her contributions of this nature to the Examiner, the Observer, and the Independent, together with her "Gala Day Books" and "A Tiff with the Tiffins," have attracted much attention. Her novel, "A Breath of Suspicion," published a short time ago, received favorable comment.

JOHN HENRY VAN KIRK, for many years prominently identified with the firm of Sheldon & Co., died in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 17th inst. He was born in the village of Carlton, Orleans County, N. Y., in 1841. His parents moved to Wisconsin when he was a child. He was graduated from the Milton Institute, Milton, Wis., and came East in 1864 to accept a position with Sheldon & Co. He left them in 1871 and became a wholesale paper dealer in Beekman Street. A year ago he went to Europe in the hope of regaining his health, but was not benefited.

REV. DR. JOSIAH TYLER died in Asheville, N. C., on the 22d inst. He spent forty years of his life as a missionary of the American Board of Foreign Missions among the Zulus. His book entitled "Forty Years Among the Zulus" is considered to be the best work on the subject.

PROF. JOHN MILEY, D.D., of Drew Theological Seminary, died in Madison, N. J., on the 20th inst., aged 82 years. He was the author of a work on "Class Meetings," "Atonement in Christ," and "Systematic Theology."

JOHN RUSSELL HIND, the astronomer and author of works on the "Solar System," "Elements of Algebra," etc., died at Twickenham, Eng., on the 23d inst. He was born in Nottingham, May 12, 1823.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

DECISION OF CANADIAN CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT REGARDING REPRINTS OF BRITISH COPYRIGHT BOOKS.

THE Canadian Customs Department has sent out a memorandum to Collectors of Customs regarding British Copyright works as follows: Item No. 101 of the Tariff, 1894, provides that reprints of British copyright works shall pay a duty of six cents per pound, and in addition thereto 12½ per cent. ad valorem until the end of the next session of Parliament, and thereafter six cents per pound; and there having been no legislation affecting the case during the last session, the provision as to the 12½ per cent. ad valorem has lapsed, therefore there is no authority for collecting the ad valorem duty, and the duty now is only six cents per pound.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

BEATRICE HARRADEN's novel of Californian life, called "Hilda Strafford," has been secured as a serial by Blackwood's Magazine, to appear next year.

GENERAL CHARLES HAMLIN and his son, Charles E. Hamlin, are in Bangor, Me., collecting data for the biography of Hannibal Hamlin which they are about to write.

PROFESSOR ARCHIBALD GEIKIE, Director-General of the Geological Surveys of the United Kingdom, and author of many important works on geology and kindred subjects, is coming to America very shortly on a lecturing tour.

The Critic learns that "Mr Watts's memoir of Rossetti will never appear, and that the full truth about his life will probably never be told in print. It was told by William Bell Scott in manuscript, and in the printed version there are approaches to the facts. No doubt, however, they are better left in silence. W. M. Rossetti's collection of his brother's letters contains no reference to these matters."

"UNCLE DANIEL'S Story of Tom Anderson and Twenty Great Battles," published by A.

R. Hart & Co., of New York, in 1886, according to a Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald, was written by Gen. John A. Logan. It was published anonymously by "An Officer of the Union Army." Many prominent men were covertly attacked in its pages, their names being paraphrased. Some of them, conspicuously Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, published interviews in self-defence. All efforts to identify the author proved fruitless. Gen. Logan, according to the Times-Herald correspondent, "wrote this book in 1884 and the following year. He began it while he was on the Republican ticket with Blaine as a candidate for Vice-President. General Logan told those who were honored with his confidence that all the incidents used in his book were actual occurrences. He regarded the story more as an autobiography than anything else. The framework of the story was imaginary, but its substance was drawn from General Logan's own experience and observations. In order to conceal his identity and to avoid pointed references to prominent men in military and civil life, General Logan changed geographical and proper names to suit his purpose, though nearly always leaving a clue to his meaning." "Uncle Daniel" in real life is said to have been Daniel McCook, father of the famous family of McCook boys who entered the army from Ohio.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Post-Office Department at Washington has denied the use of the mails to an alleged newspaper styled The American Patriot of New York City.

THE contents of the January issue of the American Historical Review will include an article by Henry C. Lea upon the massacre of the Spanish Jews in 1391.

MR. GLADSTONE is writing a series of articles for The North American Review on "The Future State, and the condition of man in it." The first part will appear in the January number.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has just issued the two handsome bound volumes of St. Nicholas which embrace the numbers for the past year. The volumes contain Palmer Cox's irrepressible Brownies, on their tour through the Union; Howard Pyle's "Jack Ballister;" Albert Stearns's "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp;" Elbridge S. Brooks's "A Boy of the First Empire;" "The Quadrupeds of North America," of all sorts and conditions, described by W. T. Hornaday; and a number of famous horses, historic and legendary, that are very lovingly written about by James Baldwin. There is a series of sketches in a simple and sympathetic vein of "Famous American Authors," by Brander Matthews, and Theodore Roosevelt's inspiring "Hero-Tales from American History." Aside from these serial features the volumes are crowded with stories, sketches, and verses that will help as well as amuse childish readers. There are also many articles that are written especially for girls. The Century Company has also just ready the bound volume—the fiftieth—of The Century, containing the numbers of the magazine for the past six months. History, biography, art, and science have adequate treatment, as well as fiction and the lighter things. Perhaps the most notable feature of the volume is Professor William M. Sloane's "Life of Napoleon," which reaches the most exciting portion of the great conqueror's career. There is a profusion of illustrations, including not only reproductions of famous masterpieces of painting, but also many drawings made for the work by French, English, and American artists.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JAMES CLARKE & Co., London, have just published a new short story by Edna Lyall, entitled "How the Children Raised the Wind."

WILLIAM J. BOK, of Flatbush, Brooklyn, will publish next summer "The Quiet City, or, the mighty tenants of world-famed Greenwood," containing a number of views of the monuments and portraits of the distinguished dead of that cemetery.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will issue early in the spring Henry Norman's "Near East." The author is revising a series of twenty letters which recently appeared in the London Chronicle, and will add much fresh material. They will publish shortly the volume of poems which Eugene Field completed just before his death.

CHAPMAN & HALL, London, will publish immediately an anthology of "English Verse from Elizabeth to Victoria," edited by Oswald Crawford, who has included as many unknown or little-known pieces as room could be made for, and also some poems that are marked chiefly by humor.

HENRY STEVENS, of Stevens & Stiles, London, Eng., will supply the American trade with the catalogue which Cedric Chivers, of the London branch of the Library Bureau, prepares for the Publishers' Central Showroom, described in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, November 9 (page 804).

PROF. GEORG EBERS's new volume, "Im Blauen Hecht" (At the Sign of the Blue Pike), is described by the London Literary World as "a psychological rather than a historical novel, but it presents us with a lively picture of many phases of German life at the beginning of the sixteenth century."

D. APPLETON & Co. are to be the publishers of Mme. Sarah Grand's new work. The title is not yet announced, but she describes the story as the unfolding of a life, and the subject as one especially adapted for the great audience of readers of her own sex which she addressed in the former book. She prefers to have it read without a break, and has declined all offers for serial publication in England and America.

WARD, LOCK & BOWDEN, LTD., have just ready a historical novel of great interest by E. H. Strain, entitled "A Man's Foes, a tale of the siege of Londonderry." The London Daily Chronicle speaks of it as "the best historical novel, pure and simple, that we have had since Conan Doyle published 'Micah Clarke.'" The publishers announce that, as the book is not copyrighted, in case it is reprinted all copies on hand in the book-stores will be considered as "on sale" and will be returnable.

J. M. DENT & Co. will issue early next year Henry Wallis's new drawings of Greek vases, including the white Athenian Lekythi, in a series of twelve plates, in color, copied from typical specimens, together with about twenty illustrations in the descriptive text. The whole will form a handsome oblong book, rather larger than imperial quarto, and it is intended that it shall be of interest (especially in the explanatory text) to lovers of Greek vases who may not have made them the subject of particular study, no less than to specialists.

GINN & Co. have in preparation a series of three volumes by Frances L. Strong, of the St. Paul, Minn., Teachers' Training School, to be published under the general title of "All the Year Round." This series is designed to tell in a child's language, and in a manner interesting to children, stories of the natural object studied for a specific day or lesson. The stories correspond in order of arrangement as nearly as possible to the precise time of the year at which the materials may be most readily obtained in our latitude. The work is adapted to the second, third, or fourth year of school, according to the course of study in the schools which use it. The separate volumes are to be entitled (1) Autumn, (2) Winter, and (3) Spring.

THE AMERICAN BOOK CO. has published a unique and useful calendar for 1896, containing features of special interest to teachers. Among these are the lists of legal and other holidays in the several States; executive, judicial, and legislative departments of U. S. Government; State and Territorial statistics, including date of admission, area, and population of each State; educational statistics of States and Territories, giving the names of the superintendents of public instruction of each State, with the latest school statistics; educational statistics of the leading cities in the United States, with names of superintendents and latest statistics of school population, attendance, etc.; educational institutions in the United States—an interesting table, compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Education. Also the usual astronomical and chronological tables, etc. The calendar will be sent free to teachers and school officers.

BUSINESS NOTES.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.—A. L. Crane, bookseller, has taken a partner, and the style of the firm is now Crane & Smith.

NEW LONDON, CONN.—The plant of the Munsey Publishing Co., publishers of Munsey's Magazine, will be removed to this city in May next, when the new building which the company is erecting will be completed.

NEW YORK CITY.—Wolf & Co., of Philadelphia, and Samuel Garre, the manager of the Art Lithographic Publishing Company, have organized the International Art Publishing Company, Limited, and this new company will open up for business in the new building at Nos. 3 and 5 Waverley Place, two doors from Broadway, New York, on January 1. This company will take over the Christmas card and souvenir business of Wolf & Co. and of the Art Lithographic Publishing Company, and besides these will have a number of other lines. Mr. Garre will have the management of the new company.

PALO ALTO, CAL.—The book-store of W. H. Simpkins has been burned out.
